

Aiding In Our Own Destruction

From The Ramparts

Junious Ricardo Stanton

“For a very large percentage of White Americans, young Black males, sexual promiscuity and criminality are synonymous. In the dominant White American consciousness the African male is existentially guilty (i.e. he is guilty by his mere existence) for merely having the audacity of being alive. There is a pervasive feeling among many White Americans that their world would be much more secure if all young Black males were imprisoned, solitarily confined to their ghettos, or kept under constant surveillance. It is no quirky coincidence that such perceptions, feelings and attitudes toward African American males occur most prevalently within the context of White American dominance. Ultimately, criminality of the Black male regardless of its nature, truth or reality, resides in any act or attitude on the part of Black males which appears to White Americans to defy White American authority, control or dominance. It is White America which defines criminality and writes the criminal codes. It writes these codes not in the interest of justice as defined by its own moral code, but in the interest of maintaining, justifying and enforcing its continued dominance of the African American community.”

I live near Philadelphia Pennsylvania where I was born and raised. Currently my former home town is going through an escalating rash of homicides, mostly Black on Black. I used to work in the city as a juvenile probation officer. One of the reasons I retired (aside from having the age to do so) was because of the frustration of seeing so many young Black males continuing to engage in behaviors I knew would either get them injured, killed or sent to prison as adults. Too many of my clients were caught up in the “gangsta” and hustler mentality propagated by the so called entertainment industry which is being used to criminalize Black males in the minds of Whites, justify draconian laws and massive increases in public spending to expand an emerging prison industry.

In the last twenty years Pennsylvania has spent more money constructing prisons, expanding and enlarging existing prisons than they have state colleges. This pattern has been replicated in most states around the country which is why people of African descent and Latinos make up over sixty per cent of the total US prison population.

“ In twelve states, between 10 and 15 percent of adult black men are incarcerated. In ten states, between 5 and 10 percent of black adults are incarcerated. In twelve states, black men are incarcerated at rates between twelve and sixteen times greater than those of white men. In fifteen states, black women are incarcerated at rates between ten and thirty-five times greater than those of white women. In six states, black youth under age eighteen are incarcerated in adult facilities at rates between twelve and twenty-five times greater than those of white youth.”

Young brothers who fancy themselves as street hustling drug dealers have no clue what they are in for. The media has glamorized the street culture and prison life to the point prison fashion is the norm in the Black community (sagging pants, flip flops and white socks, work jump-suits etc). Their own conversations exhibit their ignorance of the forces arrayed against them and how they are playing into the trap.

Most of the young males I spoke to while working as a probation officer and as a volunteer mentor to middle school youngsters expressed no “legitimate” goals or notions of what life would be like for them five to ten years hence other than balling or entertainment. Few if any talked about being alive, productive and engaged in the struggle to better conditions for our people. The few that expressed goals had not thought out or planned how they would manifest them or even knew how to realistically go about making them real. It is no surprise in a milieu such as this, death and nihilism reign.

We should not blame ourselves for this state of affairs because it was politically and culturally induced. It is part of an overarching program of white domination. But we must accept some responsibility for our lives and the way things are. Our culpability is for not providing the counterweights to the decadent, aspiritual values and self-destructive lifestyles being promoted by the mass media and its Sambo pied pipers of psychopathy like Snoop Dogg, Dr. Dre and Russell Simmons; who by the way would not be where they are if they had not been financed, promoted and distributed by whites who are using them to further their own nefarious agendas.

The dysfunction and fratricide we see in cities like Philadelphia are symptomatic of a massive program of menticide (the deliberate destruction of our minds) by our enemies. Merely telling our children to love themselves, learn about our history and practice the Nguzu Saba in a vicious and hostile culture that handsomely rewards all Blacks who work on behalf of our oppressors is unrealistic. We have to demonstrate to them how the actions (past and present) of traitors and zombies have hurt us and undermined our survival.

The killings in Philadelphia have now reached one a day thus far this year with no end in sight. This needless waste of life is exacerbated by a “Stop Snitching” mentality within the community that intimidates anyone from revealing who the miscreants are and holding them accountable. This is one reason the carnage, fear and internal terrorism continues unabated. I understand why there is a wariness to talk to the police but what about the Black community, residents know who the drug dealers are, they know who the gangstas are. The question is, why are we so impotent when it comes to dealing with our young people?

Protecting the community begins in the home. We must rear and teach our children the importance of respect for self and kind. To fail to do so is an open invitation to self-destruction! We must model values, attitudes and behaviors that demonstrate the importance and high priority of maintaining good health, positive relationships and behavior. We must tell and show our children the real deal about White racism. Most of all we have to monitor and screen the media content we allow into our homes and our children’s lives. We must learn and teach media literacy, so we ourselves know and can pass on how and what the words and images mean and the impact they have on us psychologically and emotionally. Lastly we must become more politically astute. The fratricide in our communities helps further the goals of our enemies.

We must get the word out about the global elites plans for planetary depopulation. For more information look up the National Security Study. It can be found at <http://www.population-security.org/28-APP2.html>. It is a real eye opener and will give you a new perspective on what the European ruling elites intend for the rest of us (their own people included). In their self-hatred, ignorance and youthful recklessness our young people are playing right into the hands and programs of our enemies. It is a deliberate program of mind manipulation/programming and menticide.

The dysfunction and psychopathy we see in our communities is nothing more than a conscious albeit perverted and misguided attempt to mimic White folks and have what White AmeriKKKa has. We have been programmed and coerced to accept the materialistic values, predatory modus operandi, to want the perishable things, the ever elusive trappings of “success” as defined by a barbarian culture in a vain effort to gain personal power and “esteem”. We do it whether we are hard core ghetto or superficial bougie middle class wannabees. Our esteemed ancestor Amos N. Wilson explains it this way,

“African American needs, tastes, lacks, deprivations, empty spaces, are instigated and sustained by a pre-existing, White American organized, owned and controlled production and politicoeconomic system. Hence, Black on Black ‘criminal’ needs are essentially the same as those exhibited by all ‘noncriminal’ Americans.”

If we are to survive, our first priority must be to reclaim our minds, we must decide we want to return to being human beings as opposed to mindless automatons, zombies and amoral caricatures of our enemies. Our African ancestors taught the world what it meant to be selfactualizing human beings, we need to resurrect their teachings, restore them for use during these turbulent times in order to save ourselves. It all begins in the mind, in our thinking and cogitation. We must reject the values, priorities and lifestyles of our enemies and return to sanity. Unless we find ways to alter our consciousness we will succumb to our ignorant choices and be flushed down the moral toilet with the rest of the West.
